

YESTERDAY BIG EVANGELISTIC DAY FOR REV. THOMAS

Twenty-Nine Confessions of Faith
Recorded and 265 Re-dedications
For Christian Service—Four
Meetings in Day

"IS THERE A HELL?" EVAN- GELIST'S SUBJECT TONIGHT

Three hundred persons went forward at the Presbyterian Church services yesterday to shake hands with Dr. Trigg Thomas and record their decision for Christ, the church and a better life. This number included twenty-nine persons who confessed Christ and promised to serve Him in some church, two hundred and sixty-five church members who rededicated their lives, and six church members in other places who promised to bring their membership to some Middlesboro church.

Dr. Thomas preached four times yesterday in the church to large audiences. At 10 o'clock he spoke on "The A B C's of Religion," at 11 o'clock on "Justification by Faith," at 5 o'clock to women only, on "Consecration and Christian Service," and at 7:30 o'clock on "The Preeminence of Christ." These sermons, delivered in Dr. Thomas' forceful manner, had a wonderful effect on those who heard them.

Dr. Thomas preaches tonight on "Is There a Hell?," tomorrow night on "Heaven," and Wednesday night on worldly amusements. He is speaking each morning this week at 9 o'clock in the Hub pool room and one hundred and fifty men heard him there this morning. He spoke to the employees of the Big Ben Overall factory at 12 o'clock today.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS DR. THOMAS AT HUB POOLROOM

More than a hundred and fifty men listened to the sermon of Rev. Trigg Thomas at the Hub Billiard room this morning. The subject of the discourse was "Middlesboro's Greatest Need."

"The greatest need of Middlesboro is God," declared the evangelist, "and when the church people here feel in their hearts a grief for the unbelief of the city, then we will have a great revival."

The crowd at the poolroom service was composed mainly of business men who had left their work long enough to attend the service. All through the fifteen minute service they continued to come in. All appeared to enjoy the brief talk.

Rev. Thomas thanked the manager for the use of the room long enough to conduct the service and promised to be there at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning for another brief sermon.

Power Behind Machine, Indicted on Fraud, Misappropriating
School Funds

MAYOR THOMPSON ANNOUNCES HIS INTENTION TO RETIRE

By Associated Press
CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Fred Lundin, former congressman and known as the silent power behind the political machine of Mayor Thompson, was indicted here today charged with conspiracy in connection with the administration of school funds. Lundin is missing. He is credited with having been the genius behind Thompson's organization which is described as the greatest political machine ever established in Illinois. With Thompson's announcement of intention to retire the machine is now reported breaking up.

SOUTHERN APPALACHIAN COAL OPERATORS BANQUET FEB. 23

KNOXVILLE, Jan. 29.—Appalachian Coal Operators will hold their annual meeting and banquet here February 23, it was announced by R. E. Howe, secretary.

An entertainment committee composed of Ed Stegall, Victor N. Hacker, L. F. Pratt, Howell J. Davis and R. E. Howe has been named to prepare the spread.

Officers will be elected to succeed J. C. Gantley, president; Victor N. Hacker, vice-president; C. M. Moore, vice-president and R. E. Howe, secretary and treasurer.

More than 100 representatives of the coal industry in the Appalachian region are expected to be in attendance and to participate in discussions of conditions in the industry.

Reports of impending lower prices for fuel are given little credence here as operators and dealers say the present prices are based on basic conditions and no change is possible until these conditions change. These involve scarcity of cars, over development of industry and lack of railway truck facilities.

PINEVILLE LEGION MINSTREL TONIGHT

"The Dixie Capers of 1923" Featuring City's Best Talent, to Be Given at Gaines

PINEVILLE, Jan. 29.—"The Dixie Capers of 1923," a minstrel extravaganza in three parts, will be given under the auspices of the Bennett Asher Post No. 10 of the American Legion, Monday night at the Gaines Theater.

Graham Ware, commander of the post, will be master of ceremonies and the premier ends will be Ben E. Chief and Carl B. Hoskins. Other members of the cast are: Fun Purveyors: White L. Moss, A. S. McAlfry, Marcellus Moss, A. J. Draper, and W. E. Gilbreath; vocalists, G. W. Harrison, Fred Bishel, John Bingham, and White L. Moss; visitors, N. C. Adles, Elgan Brooks, I. C. Broughton, W. M. Hunter, F. G. Shusher, and A. J. Waldorf.

Miss Bees Rice and Miss Effie Colson as "Disciples of Jazz" will be one of the features of the third caper, "The Heart of the Mardi Gras." In "The Dixie Derby," H. O. Craig will play the part of Madame Dum Dora, (a coal bucket blonde from the FI Islands, and owner of Bulter, the horse).

A quartette composed of Mrs. Waldorf, Messrs. Miracle, Colson, and Spenters will sing "Lost We Forget," and following the sixth caper the entire aggregation will appear in the grand finale.

MANCHESTER BEATS PINEVILLE BASKETBALL FRIDAY NIGHT

PINEVILLE, Jan. 29.—The inexperienced mountaineers were defeated by the fast Manchester five by a score of 22 to 5 Friday night. The game was rough yet interesting and the Pineville boys put up a good fight throughout the game. Wagers led the scoring with five field goals.

In the curtain-raiser the senior girls won from the freshmen girls by the score of 20-1. The goal shooting by Lucy Gregg was the outstanding feature of the game.

The line-up follows:
Pineville: Weller, T. Carns, (C) Wagers, Hollins (F) Walters, Asher, Earl, (IF) Condill, VanBever, Carns (G) Luca, Green Hoskins (G) Philpot, Davidson
Referee, Jack Porter.

BELIEVE JEALOUSY MOTIVE IN MURDER OF KENTUCKIANS

Man and Woman Found Slain Yesterday in Country Near Memphis, Both Evidently Shot
Through Back

SHERIFF THINKS ROBBERY MERELY "COVER UP" TRICK

By Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Jan. 29.—Sheriff Oliver Perry, investigating the murder near here of Mrs. Ruth McCelwain Tucker, and Duncan Walter, both former residents of Kentucky, whose bodies were found in the country Sunday today advanced the theory that the murders were due to jealousy or revenge. Theft of money from Walter and jewelry from the woman, the sheriff said was a "cover up." Walter's body was found in an automobile with the woman twenty feet away. Reconstructing events, officers think Walter was ordered to halt and he was shot from behind. They think the woman leaped from the machine. Marks on her wrists indicated she grappled with her assailant. Apparently she broke away and was also shot from behind.

MEMPHIS, Jan. 29.—Police still were without clue today in investigation of the deaths of Mrs. Ruth McCelwain Tucker, 20, and Duncan Walter, 19, traveling salesman of Mayfield, Ky., who were found shot to death on the road several miles east of here yesterday. Two theories for the shooting are offered by the police, robbery and jealousy. Jewelry worn by Mrs. Tucker and money carried by Walter said missing.

BOWLING GREEN, Jan. 29.—Body of Mrs. Ruth McCelwain Tucker is due to arrive here today. The funeral will be held tomorrow with interment here.

JAMES SCALF LOSES SUIT AGAINST L. & N.

James Scalf lost the suit which he instituted against the L. and N. railway company and which was tried in circuit court Saturday afternoon. The plaintiff alleged that his health had been impaired by a lack of drainage on the right of way of defendant's railroad. The L. and N. offered evidence to prove that proper drainage work had been done.

With the trial of this case, the term of civil court came to an end here. Judge J. G. Forrester will be in Hartman this week to preside over circuit court there.

BEGIN WHOLESAL GERMAN ARRESTS AND EXPULSIONS

High Officials Refuse to Obey French
Orders—Strike of Railroad
Workers Throughout Ruhr
Is Complete

TELEPHONE AND POSTAL SERVICES ALSO AFFECTED

By Associated Press.
DUSSELDORF, Jan. 29.—French occupation authorities today began a series of wholesale arrests and expulsions of highest German officials, the chiefs of bureaus and municipal heads of services for refusal to obey orders. Meanwhile the strike of German railroad workers throughout the Ruhr valley is as complete as was that of telegraph employees. Telephone and postal services are also partially affected.

MRS. R. LEE GIVENS DIES AT SHAMROCK SATURDAY NIGHT

Mrs. R. Lee Givens, age 45, died at her home near Shamrock at 6:30 Saturday night. The remains were brought to Middlesboro this afternoon to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shumate on Eber Avenue. Mrs. Givens was Mr. Shumate's sister. Funeral services will be conducted at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning by Rev. Sam P. Martin. Interment will be in Jones cemetery.

R. HILL SPEAKS TO BAPTISTS ON DEMOCRATIC STEWARDSHIP

With the house crowded to its utmost capacity, Russ Hill delivered a forceful address on the subject of "Democratic Stewardship" at the First Baptist church last night. His remarks included a general comment and criticism on social conditions in Middlesboro.

The titling campaign which was inaugurated some time ago by the Southern Baptist convention in general of the states was discussed by the speaker. He told of the progress of the work and said that all meetings which have been held in the interest of the work here were successful. He mentioned the state organization of which W. S. Farmer of Frankfort is chairman.

In his discussion of the state of affairs which he declared exists in Middlesboro he denounced gambling, whiskey, dancing and all forms of vice.

Nearriots took place in Essen when the French settled down to occupy the German city. Mounted police are shown here in front of the Kaiserhof Hotel attempting to scatter a crowd of Irish citizens who threatened to mob French officers.

PREVENTION OF THE FLU

The flu and pneumonia epidemic, prevalent in this vicinity as well as practically every where else the past few weeks, does not seem to be decreasing. Whether individuals are to blame for its spread or not it behooves every one to be careful, first, not to contract it, and second, if he does get it, not to spread it further.

Flu is very contagious as evinced by the fact that it almost always goes through the family. If one member gets the disease the rest are more than liable to acquire it. As prevention is the main treatment of flu this phase, then, can not be too strongly emphasized.

Doctors give three rules in consideration of this: First, they say, the flu patient should be segregated; second, individuals should stay away from public gatherings where it might be acquired; third, if flu is contracted, the patient should go to bed and stay there so as to avoid pneumonia complications.

The second point here is particularly stressed by physicians. The public gathering, whether picture show, church, or crowded store, spreads the flu, they say. It has not been necessary to close these places, as it was in 1918 and 1919, but persons with a cold or flu should certainly have consideration enough to stay away from these gatherings and ventilation should be such as to help protect those who are there.

NEED OF HIGHWAY TRANSPORTATION

By Job S. Boggs
When mankind first emerged from civilization and established community life the need of highways was felt. Through all the thousand of years since that time this need has kept pace with the progress of civilization and become more imperative. The greatest nations that the world has seen and the most highly-developed peoples that history records have been those that had the best system of highway transportation. The more ease of intercourse between peoples and the more they can mingle with each other, the more advanced becomes their development. Without such ways such intercourse is impossible. Farmers and communities living un- to themselves as between narrow walls, make no advances in the scale of human activities and become dwarfed in their natures.

Money invested in the construction of roads is an investment of the highest order returning not only great financial rewards in the handling of commerce, but largely benefiting in the improvement of the welfare of the citizens. Highways are the only means of transportation in the world that belongs to the people, owned and controlled by them, but unfortunately most times neglected. It is impossible to place a cash valuation upon the system of roads of any community. There value cannot be measured in terms of money. Deprive any county or state in the twinkling of an eye of its system of roads, no matter whether good or bad, and you have done an irreparable injury to that county or state until replacement has been made. The advancement of commerce, the education of people, the progress of religion, the happiness and welfare of any community are largely dependent upon highway transportation. Why is it, therefore, that we people in Kentucky waste so much valuable time and effort in talking good roads and not being willing to furnish the necessary funds for their proper construction. No better investment can be made by the State of Kentucky than a substantial investment in a trunk line system of highways belonging to all and serving all.—Kentucky Road Builder.

COAL OUTPUT IN FIELD DROPPED

Attributed To Lack Of Transportation And To Labor Shortage

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Coal production in the Southern Appalachian and Kentucky-Tennessee association fields was only 21.3 per cent of full time output for the week ending January 6, he compared with 38.2 per cent for the week ending December 30, according to the current weekly survey of the Geological survey. The 787 per cent lost production the week of January 6, was due to transportation disability. The preceding week 14 per cent of the loss was due to labor shortage and 60.4 to lack of transportation.

The Harlan Kentucky district produced only 18.9 per cent of full time output the week of January 6, against 26.5 per cent the week of December 30. The Harlan loss the week of January 6 was 79.4 per cent due to transportation disability, one per cent to mine disability and seven-tenths per cent to labor shortage. The pro-

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Hi lee, hi lo, bi lee, hi lo, hi—!" Suddenly the voice stopped singing and there was silence.

Nancy and Nick and Mr. Stamps, the fairy postman, peeped out of the hickory tree postoffice curiously to see what had happened. "Why, Mr. Tinkling was happy as a circus clown a minute ago when he was here for his mail!" said Nick.

"And he got enough valentines to keep him happy for a month!" declared Nancy.

Mr. Stamps winked one eye. "Meh-be!" he remarked wisely. "And meh-be not. It depends on the valentines."

Just then they saw the fat fairy landlord returning toward the little postoffice as fast as his short legs would carry him. But his face was as long as—oh, about as long as a geography lesson, and he looked as gloomy as a London fog, and his hat cream saucer of a hat, always crooked, was crooked 'n' it ever been before.

"Say," he said, "Just listen to this valentine will you? I'm so mad I believe I'm going to burst!"

And indeed he looked like it. "Here's what it says." And Mr. Tinkling began:

"Tinkle bell, tinkle bell, tinkle all the day. When we hear the doorbell ring Then we run away—ay. Mr. Tinkling, fat old Tinkling Coming to his rent, He always comes a week too soon. When we haven't got a cent."

"Tinkle bell, tinkle bell, tinkle all the night. The fairy landlord is so fat He is a wondrous sight. His toots all leak his floss all croak. He won't fix up a thing Oh, the landlord of the deep dark woods. Is Mr. Tinkling—ling."

"Why, I'm perfectly insulted," cried Tinkling.

"Oh, no!" laughed Nancy. "They all love you and you know it. Mr. Tinkling. They're only teasing you. Can't you take a joke?"

RESOLUTIONS

By Berton Braler

My salary commences To vanish; ere its earned, I cannot meet expenses, Though why, I've never learned, In spite of how we plan, we Remain in debt and doubt. We can't explain, nor can we Make it out.

We really ought to flourish, My income's pretty good, And yet we scarcely nourish Our bodies as we should. Our problem—who shall judge it? "We've got to keep a budget— Bye and bye."

Where does the money go to? It's quite too tough for words. To think of all we throw to The little dicky birds. A bank account we're craving, Alas the dollars fly! And we instead of saving, Day and buy.

Some day when we get to it, We'll keep a ledger planned To show us, when we view it, Exactly how we stand; Put now—we merely fudge it, And watch our debts run high, We sure must keep a budget Eye and bye!

KATE WARD, widow of IAN WARD living with her father, JUSTIN PARSONS, has a visitor, CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was father of her child.

DOROTHY. Kate is much perturbed. A few evenings later Kate and her father find the unconscious victim of an auto crash near their house and carry him in. Recovering, he says he is JAMES LATHAM. He wows Kate. Fond of him, yet still devoted to Dan's memory, she does not know what to do. Then it develops that Latham was acquainted with Dan and believes he knows of a trunk in an old fishing shack the latter owned and which may contain papers throwing a light on his romance with Alice. The two motor together to the shack.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I haven't the keys and don't suppose anyone knows where they are new—but we may be able to get in through a window," said Latham as he tried the door of the fishing shack and met sturdy resistance.

They went to a window at the side. That too resisted their efforts to raise it.

"In pretty good shape for a cabin that has been deserted for so long—don't suppose it has been used much since that last day I saw Dan here," Latham was still working at the window.

"Break the glass—we'll have to get in somehow," Kate commanded, "and if it's my property I have a right to wreck it. Even if it weren't mine I'd risk any kind of trespass prosecution to get the trunk."

Latham gave the glass a smart blow with his hand. It splintered. He pushed out the pieces so the frame was clear and then climbed into the cabin. Kate stood impatiently at the door while he drew back the heavy bolts. Once inside she scanned the place and then rushed across the one large room which the building contained.

"This is it—I know it is, isn't it?" eagerly. She was on her knees before a small trunk, working with the fastenings.

"It's locked," she said after a few seconds.

"Yes, I think the only way we can open it will be to break the lock." "Break it!" from Kate.

Latham set at the task. Kate stood near and watched him. It affected her strangely. Somehow the opening of this little, old trunk which had been the property of her husband seemed like desecration of some sacred place. It had been Dan's. He had locked it and gone away. Now strange hands were setting ruthlessly at it. Curious eyes would search the contents. She felt that she must stop it!

"Jimmy—" the words were on her lips.

"Yes, dear," Latham was on his knees at the trunk, did not look up.

"Wait—wait—let it—" Kate stopped speaking.

The lock snapped. The trunk was open. There, at her feet, lay things that had been his. His football clothes, with the soil of the game on them; his fishing things, as if he had just stepped out of them; a sweater, with the creases still in the sleeves at the elbows. They looked as if they must have covered his arms only yesterday!

Kate turned away. "Please close it, Jimmy," Her tone was colorless.

Latham softly returned the cover to its place and then sat motionless on the floor while Kate stared out of the window.

ANEMONES

Since you are grown, and fortune kind
Has planted orchids by your way,
I wonder if you ever find
Such joy in them as in that day
When we heard Meraun's maple trees
Went gathering anemones

I wonder if you see them still—
The triple-entailed basswood sprays,
The budding beeches on the hill—
The willows pale by lowland ways,
The spice-brush stirred by spring's mild breeze,
Above the first anemones

Star-pure they were, and moonbeam-white;

Within the gray rail-fence's nook
A squirrel called; and just aight,
A robin plump the beech spray shook,
And hummed a few roathe honey-bees
Above the sweet anemones.

A maple tree in Merran wood Bears on its trunk your name and mine,

Slow carved as hand in hand we stood,
Half sheltered by a green-brier vine
Beneath it still the springtime sees
A thousand white anemones.

Edith B. Spaulding.

Good Manners

Brogue contradictions are both rede and unnecessary in a social conversation and they usually can be toned down, so as not to wound, even where unavoidable in a talk of a business nature. Dissent can be expressed in some such way as, "Quite true, but—" An interruption, if it cannot be helped, should be accompanied by a word of apology.

Prominent Lee County Couple Marry Saturday

The following social item from Ewing is of interest to many readers of this paper:

"Miss Shan Parker, daughter of Mrs. Esther Parker of Gibson Station and Mr. Daniel Vermillion Richmond of Ewing were married at 1:30 p. m. Saturday at the residence of the Rev. and Mrs. Isaac S. Anderson, with only a few relatives and intimate friends as witnesses. Immediately following the ceremony the couple, accompanied by Miss Anne Gibson, N. B. Richmond and N. G. Fugate, motored to Cumberland Gap, where they took the train for Knoxville. They will visit in Abingdon, Knoxville and other southern points before returning to their home in Ewing.

"The bride is a beautiful and accomplished young lady. She was educated at Martha Washington College Abingdon, Va., and is a talented musician. The groom is a prominent merchant of Ewing and is also postmaster there. The wedding unites two of Lee County's most prominent families."

TODAY'S RECIPES

ST. VALENTINE SALAD

2 cups white cherries (canned)
3 pimientos (canned red peppers)
4 slices canned pineapple
1 grape fruit
1 cup well-seasoned mayonnaise

1-2 cup cream beaten until stiff
1 head lettuce or escarole

Remove pits from cherries; cut the pimientos into small pieces; cut pineapple into dice, and remove sections from grape fruit, cutting them into shreds. Add a sprinkling of salt and thoroughly chill the fruit. When ready to serve mix with the mayonnaise and cream. Into the pasty hearts place three heart leaves of lettuce or escarole and on these place a spoonful of fruit salad. Dust with paprika and serve.

For the pastry hearts use:

1 1-2 cups flour
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup water
1 cup grated cheese mixed with 1 1/4 teaspoon salt and a few grains of cayenne
1-4 cup lard

1-4 cup butter

Mix flour, salt and lard together. Mix to a stiff dough with the ice water. Turn onto a flour board; roll out, spread with the butter, sprinkle with flour, fold into three folds and chill. Roll to one-fourth inch in thickness. Sprinkle with cheese; fold, roll out and repeat twice, using a third of the cheese each time. Again chill, then roll to one-fourth inch in thickness, and with a heart-shaped cutter, cut as many hearts as desired for individual service. With a pointed knife or another small cutter remove center, leaving a wall half an inch thick. Bake these in hot oven until delicately browned, and well risen, about fifteen minutes. Cool and use as directed above.

America Stands Between Refugees and Death While Greece Adjusts Herself to Post-War Conditions

"Whatever the ultimate decision may be as to the settlement of the questions arising from the recent conflict between Greece and Turkey, for the present at least American charity organized by the American Red Cross, is the sole hope of life for more than a million refugees in Greece. These people have fled before Turkish occupation in Greece, and have furnished a problem that is too great for the Greek Government. Wave after wave of homeless women, children and old men—the Turks detained men of military age—reaching the quays of Saloniki, Piraeus, and the ports on the many islands of the Aegean Sea, have faced a future which is the concern of nations. And with the earlier arrivals, Dr. A. Ross Hill, vice-chairman in charge of foreign operations of the American Red Cross.

brought the resources of the American Red Cross to bear, more than $2,000,000 having been already spent from the disaster emergency funds, to supply American medicine, food, blankets and overcoats to the sufferers.

Now Dr. Hill is about to return to America and resume his regular duties and Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, has borrowed Col. William N. Haskell from the American Relief Administration to direct the work in Greece. Col. Haskell's services in Russia during the famine period are well known, and he has had further experience in relief work, having been head of an American mission in Armenia. Colonel Haskell and staff will execute a mobile program, meeting the need where it is the worst, and the medical men will coordinate and expand the work of camp sanitation, the establishing of mobile hospitals for epidemics, open ambulances, and furnish further aid to the infants and sick. The need for the latter phase of the work is keen, as the hardships of the fight and lack of living quarters and of proper sanitary arrangements have developed a distinct menace from epidemics and other diseases.

Distribution of American milk has been the only salvation for huge numbers of children, while food of other sorts bought by the Red Cross and distributed under its supervision in kitchens operated by Greek agencies has meant life to adults.

America, Colonel Haskell explained just before sailing for his new field of operations, is not bound to a continuing responsibility to care for the refugees, but will carry on while the permanent solution of the problem is being decided by the Greek Government.

Winter Bugbear to Russian Children; Clothing Shortage Holds Death Menace for Them

All their lives long Russian children of today will hate the snow. Youngsters of other lands may make snow men and build snow fortresses and gleefully trace the signature of Jack Frost on the window panes, but no Russian boy or girl who goes through this winter will ever again welcome the cold into his play. Luckier tykes elsewhere in the world may look upon ice and snow as their special toy, but the suffering they have brought this winter to Russia will make them the relentless bugbear of the Russian children.

The winter is no harder than usual in Russia, it is true, where every winter is hard, since the climate is similar to that of the Northern United States and Canada. The point that makes the difference to the Russian youngsters is the clothing shortage that today holds that unhappy country in its grip, bringing such pain and peril that American Relief Administration workers say that thousands of children and adults will die unless clothing is sent to them. In winters as cruel as those of Minnesota or Alberta, children have neither wraps or underclothing, and no other protection against the cold than a single garment of thin racking or tattered rags. Sometimes they do not even have this. "I thought that the children were stripped for a medical examination," a relief worker lately returned to the United States said in describing his visit to a Russian orphanage. "But I found that they were naked because they had no clothes. The building was without heat, and wind blew through the broken window panes.

In their own homes the children face just as badly. Many of them have so few garments that they cannot go out of doors at all, even to go to the A. R. A. kitchens for their one precious meal a day. Their elders are in an equally pitiable plight. The cold weather at present is almost as much of a menace as last year's famine, A. R. A. workers say.

To meet this crisis the American Relief Administration has introduced a clothing remittance package, similar to the famous food remittance package of last year. For the sum of $20 paid to the New York Headquarters of the A. R. A., 42 Broadway, any friend or relative or sympathizer of these suffering Russians may send one of these packages to any designated Russian. A direct receipt will be returned to him from the recipient of the package. The contents of each package are as follows:

4 2/3 yards of 56-inch, 20-ounce dark blue wool cloth, sufficient for a suit of clothes for an adult, or outer garments for two children; 4 yards of black cotton lining; 16 yards of muslin, for 4 suits of underwear; 8 yards of flannel, for 2 men's shirts or 2 women's shirt waists; buttons and thread to make up this material.

How to Use Vicks VapoRub For Deep Grippy Colds

First, It Is Very Important That a Thorough Rubefacient Or Counter-Irritant Effect Be Produced on the Surface Of the Skin Around the Lungs.

This Draws the Blood From the Congested Lungs and Lessens the Danger of Pneumonia

THEN TREAT WITH VICKS

Deep, grippy colds, frequently leading to pneumonia, have been unusually prevalent this winter. In some sections they are called influenza, but are not so virulent as the influenza cases during the first epidemic, though they are worse than ordinary colds. For these cases the usual light application of Vicks is not sufficient.

The Danger Is From Pneumonia

What is needed therefore is something to decrease the congestion of the lungs. For this purpose there is nothing like a rubefacient or counter-irritant, as witness the use of blisters, poultices and plasters for many generations. This reddening or irritation of the skin causes a rush of blood to the surface; the circulation is improved; there is a sensation of warmth and the possibility of pneumonia is greatly lessened.

A "Quick" Rubefacient Needed

The value of this counter-irritant effect is greatly increased if it is produced quickly. Nearly every family has its favorite method—oil of turpentine, turpentine stapes, mustard plasters and poultices of various kinds are all good.

How to Produce This Effect

Our experiments have shown that an ordinary mustard plaster is very effective. Use one part of mustard to two parts of flour or flaxseed meal for adults, and one to three parts for children under eight years.

An even simpler method, particularly for adults, is to apply towels, wrung out in very hot water—as hot as the patient can stand. Whatever method is used, the application should be applied over the throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. In very deep colds, the sides and especially the back from the middle of the shoulder blades, to a point just above the waist, should also be treated. For adults, a hot mustard foot-bath—one tablespoon of mustard to a gallon of water—given at this stage of the treatment, will aid in drawing the blood from the congested parts.

Then Massage With Vicks

After the skin is thoroughly reddened, it should be dried lightly and immediately and the patient should be given a brisk massage with Vicks all over the parts. Continue this for five minutes. This increases the counter-irritant effect. Then apply Vicks thickly over all the parts; that you would a poultice—about one-sixteenth of an inch thick or more—and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths.

Vicks Acts Like a Vapor

The advantage of applying Vicks thickly over the body is this: Vicks is so made that the body heat gradually releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. The more Vicks applied, the stronger will the vapors be and the longer these vapors will last. The night clothing should always be loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel. These vapors being lighter than air rise up from the chest and, if the bed clothing is properly arranged pass by the nose and mouth and are thus inhaled with each breath, carrying the medication directly thru the air passages to the lungs. At the same time Vicks is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin.

Repeat the Entire Treatment When the vapors begin to lose their strength fresh Vicks should be applied over the parts. This is to keep up the continuous supply of vapors. When the redness of the skin begins to die out, all the Vicks remaining should be wiped off and the entire treatment repeated. That is the hot wet towels or mustard plasters should be used until the skin is again thoroughly reddened then massage with Vicks, spread on thickly and cover with hot flannels, just as previously done.

Can Add Mustard to Vicks

This redness of the skin should last for two or three hours but varies with different patient. Some skins are much more sensitive than others. This redness can be prolonged by mixing a little ordinary powdered mustard with Vicks—about one part of mustard to four parts of Vicks, but this can be varied according to the patient's skin. Just enough mustard should be used to keep up the counter-irritant effect for two to four hours, so that the wet towels or mustard plasters will not have to be used so freely as to prevent the patient from resting.

Use In a Tea-Kettle

Sometimes when the patient is badly choked up, the vapors from the application on the chest are not sufficient to make the breathing easier. In these cases drop a tablespoonful of Vicks into a kettle of boiling water and allow the patient to inhale the warm steam and vapors combined for about 10 minutes. Do this several times a day if needed. Keep the water boiling and put in additional Vicks whenever the vapors decrease. Put a sheet over the patient and the tea-kettle, making a kind of a tent, so as to confine the vapors. An ordinary steam vaporizer is even more convenient than a tea kettle.

Scanty Applications Useless

This is a vigorous treatment, but to check congestion requires vigorous measures. Vicks must be used freely to be effective. The cost of this treatment is insignificant compared with the results which are frequently obtained.

Does Not Take the Place of the Physician

In all cases a physician should be called. These deep colds are too serious and have too many complications to rely entirely on any home medication. Vicks, however, does not interfere with any treatment that the doctor may prescribe. In addition the formula of Vicks is given on every circular so there is no reason why any doctor should object to its use, except the fact that a few physicians do not care to use anything which is advertised directly to the public.

A Pharmacist's Discovery

Vicks VapoRub is the discovery of a North Carolina pharmacist. From the back room of a little drug store its use has grown until today literally tens of millions of families are never without the family blue jar. It is their standby for all forms of cold troubles and, in addition, is useful for the many minor ailments of the home. It is particularly a boon to mothers with small children, because it is externally applied.

Over 17 million jars are used yearly in the United States alone.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG
Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

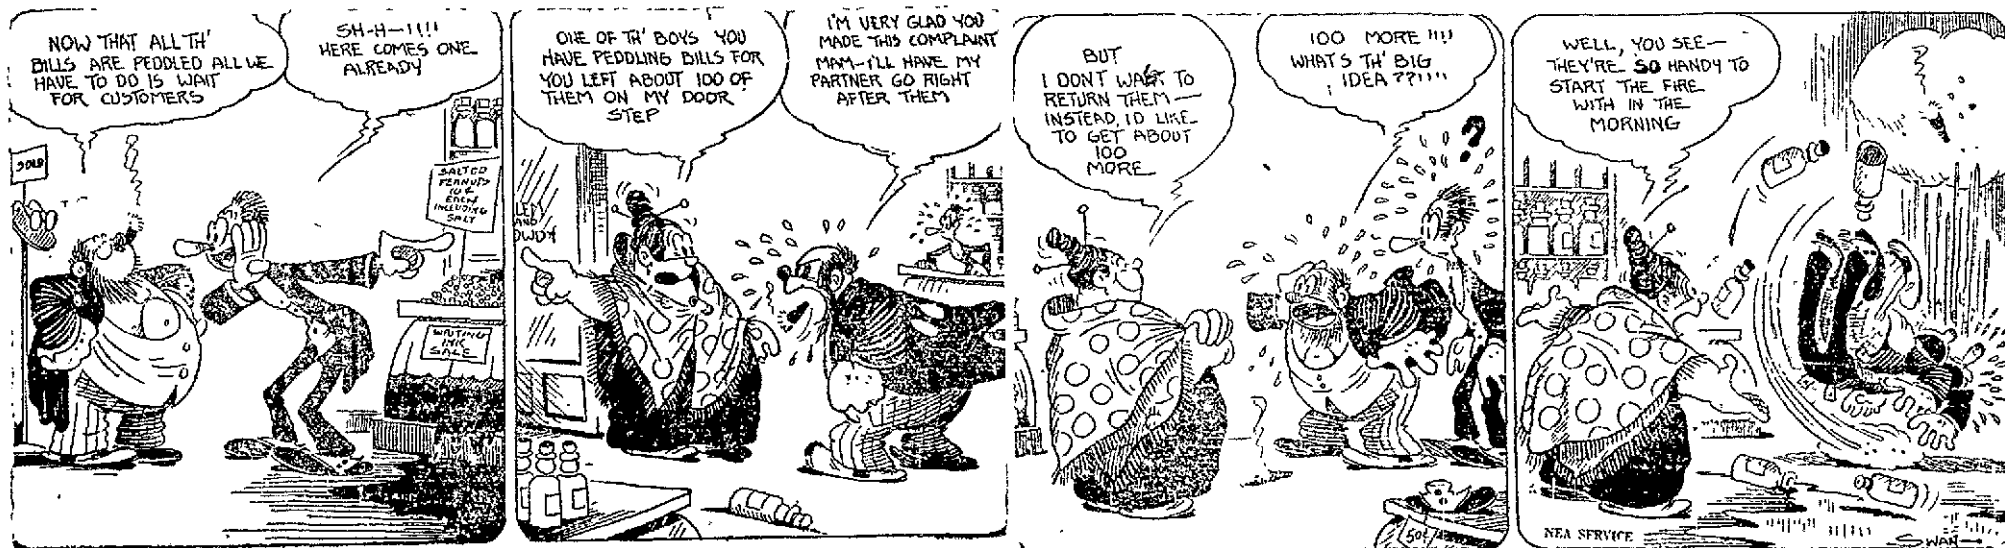

Well-known druggists say everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Refugees Thronging Greek Ports, Tax Nation's Resources; American Red Cross Helps

American Red Cross traditions are again being lived up to—this time in helping to meet a problem that for a time threatened to engulf Greece, and which arose from the pouring into that country of more than a million refugees from Turkish-occupied territory. When the influx began last fall, Dr. A. Ross Hill, Vice Chairman in charge of Foreign Operations, went to Greece. He purchased American and Australian flour and other food with which to feed the thousands of helpless women, children and old men—for the Turks had held all men of military age. These homeless wanderers had been left at various points on the mainland and on islands in the Aegean Sea and their plight was aggravated by the fact that they had no adequate shelter. They were obliged to sleep in public buildings of every sort and some even remained on the quays where they had debarked; many lived in the streets, cooking such food as they had there. And the lack of sanitary measures brought disease to add to the hopelessness of exile. Then the American Red Cross brought food and medical supplies, spending already more than $2,000,000 from its disaster emergency fund.

Now Judge John Barton Payne, Chairman of the American Red Cross, has "borrowed" Col. William N. Haskell who has been directing the feeding of 10,000,000 famine victims in Russia. And Col. Haskell and a staff of experts who served with him in Russia and Armenia will continue the work begun by Dr. Hill along the lines which the

Kentucky Road Builder Has Article On Bell County Member of Highway Commission

The Kentucky Road Builder in the January issue, carries a story about the members of the Kentucky Highway Commission, with the following comment on one of its members, Hugh H. Asher of Pineville:

Mr. Hugh H. Asher, of Pineville, Ky., was appointed by Governor Morrow to a membership in the State Highway Commission in the year 1920, or just after the enactment of the law creating that commission. He is a member of the Republican party, one of the two members of that political persuasion appointed to represent the State at large on the bipartisan Highway Commission.

Born at Callaway, Bell County, August 7, 1871, he was educated in the public schools of that county and later spent two years at the University of Kentucky at Lexington. Between the years 1889 and 1898, Mr. Asher was associated with his father in the lumber industry. For the next ten years he was engaged in the mercantile business at Chicago, Ill. In 1908 he returned to Bell County and became superintendent of construction of the Washto and Black Mountain Railroad. Following that experience he was associated with the coal mining industry for a number of years, and at present is secretary of the Asher Coal Mining Company, which controls 23,000 acres of coal lands in Bell and adjoining counties; he is also president of the Bell National Bank at Pineville.

Mr. Asher has long been an interested advocate of good roads in all of Kentucky, and it is natural that he should want some of them to extend into Eastern Kentucky, where passable roads are so very badly needed.
